Unbedingt lesenswert!Von -KundeJapara hat mich von der ersten Seite an gefesselt und tief berhrt. Das Englisch ist so geschrieben, dass man alles intuitiv versteht ohne alle Vokabeln zu kennen. Man taucht ein in die Welt der Aborigines verknüpft mit der Rahmenhandlung im hier und jetzt, wird mitgerissen von der temporeichen Handlung mit allen Gefühlen. Trauer, Verzweiflung, Mut, Freude und Liebe. Man geht fröhlich mit durch den Prozess, den der Astronom Robert Richards durchlebt. Einfach toll. Das beste Buch, das Ray Wilkins bisher geschrieben hat. Danke dafür!

Kurzbeschreibung An epic story about a man who changed his life. Supported by the legends of the Australian Aborigines and a remarkable woman. Reaching for the stars to discover the true meaning of courage. Robert Richards Chief astronomer at Mount Stromlo observatory, Canberra is suffering a life crisis when he meets Rebecca Jones an Optical lens engineer. Robert has had a very turbulent past and has difficulties getting his life on line. He grew up with a strong contact to the Australian aborigines and two of his best friends Wootara and Birribirri are aborigines too. As an adolescent he experienced for the first time the Brolga dance a dance that leads the dancer into the Dreamtime where it is possible to change something in your life. He does not complete the ritual. Through his relationship to Rebecca and the tragic death of his best friend Wootara he learns more about his personality and personal challenges but he still remains caught up in his past. He takes his life in his own hands during a major bushfire that destroyed large parts of the Australian Capital Territory including his place of work, Mount Stromlo observatory. He discovers courage and the power to survive while rescuing Rebecca and 3 co-workers from the flaming inferno. He is himself becomes severely injured and falls into a coma. But the change process does not end here. He enters the Dreamtime to complete the Brolga dance and experiences a healing process supported by the legends of the Aborigines and Yarrabindi the girl with nine toes that will change his life forever.
